Hometown Brothers Release New Bedtime Storybook “Bedtime for Buzzy”

BROOKLYN, N.Y. — Author T.J. Hackworth and illustrator Sean Baptist, homegrown Berrien County siblings, aim to make children’s bedtime a little easier and a lot more fun with the nationwide release of their new book, “Bedtime for Buzzy.”

In the cleverly-illustrated “Bedtime for Buzzy,” a young boy is playing with his toys and doesn't want to go to bed, until he imagines his toys coming to life one by one to convince him that going to sleep is the best way to continue his adventures.

As parents of young children know all too well, convincing a child that it is time to go to bed can sometimes be difficult. “Bedtime for Buzzy” encourages bedtime by helping to lead children to their own conclusion that it’s time to go to bed. “Bedtime for Buzzy” makes a perfect addition to a child's nightly storybook ritual.

The 28-page, hardcover book has already received critical acclaim, including positive reviews from the Children’s Book Review, Foreword Reviews, and others. Among them, Kirkus Reviews called it “a giggle-worth ode to creativity, perfect for youngsters who have trouble saying goodnight.” And BlueInk Review awarded the book a “Starred Review,” saying “together, the text and pictures imbue the characters with a warm, winning joie de vivre that’s impossible to resist.”

Published by Downtown & Brown Ventures, the book is available for order from Amazon, Barnes & Noble, and other bookstores nationwide. The book can also be purchased directly from the publisher at www.bedtimeforbuzzy.com.
